

DAVID ROSENBERG

David Rosenberg is the Legal Counsel for Live365, an internet radio company that has been in operation since 1999 and provides an outlet to distribute audio content for over 7000 broadcasters. In his role as Legal Counsel, David oversees and manages all day to day aspects of the legal department and is currently managing the company's royalty rate setting proceeding before the Copyright Royalty Board (CRB) and a constitutional challenge to the CRB in the District Court of D.C. In addition, David is heavily involved in the development of new business strategies for the company. Prior to his employment with Live365, David worked in private practice with Townsend and Townsend Crew in both patent litigation and IP transactional matters and has worked in various business development and strategic capacities for multiple venture-backed digital media startups. David holds engineering degrees from Duke University, a law degree from UC Hastings College of Law, and an MBA from NYU's Stern School of Business.
